DoubleLine Global Core Plus Bond Sub-Fund

This is a marketing communication. Please refer to the Fund prospectus and to the KIID/KID before making any final investment decisions.

Quarterly Sub-Fund Attribution

In the second quarter of 2026, the DoubleLine UCITS Global Core Plus Bond Sub-Fund portfolio generated a positive absolute return but underperformed the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Bond Index (USD Hedged) return of 1.30%. The quarter was characterized by resilient global risk-asset performance amid heightened geopolitical and macroeconomic uncertainty. U.S. equities posted strong gains, supported by robust corporate earnings, continued enthusiasm for AI-related investment and investor confidence that economic growth would remain resilient despite geopolitical tensions in the Middle East. Energy markets remained a key driver of the macro backdrop, with elevated oil prices contributing to persistent inflation concerns and complicating the outlook for central banks. Against this backdrop, the Federal Reserve kept interest rates unchanged. U.S. Treasury yields generally moved higher as markets priced in a higher-for-longer policy path. Despite higher rates and increased volatility, equity markets and most fixed-income sectors generated positive returns. The biggest contributors to DoubleLine UCITS Global Core Plus Bond Sub-Fund by sector were global sovereigns, as developed market yields, most notably in the eurozone, fell as the inflation risk premium unwound with a pullback in oil prices. Non-Agency residential mortgage-backed securities were also among the biggest contributors, as the sector benefited from resilient housing market fundamentals and a favorable supply-demand dynamic. Despite generating positive performance, Treasuries were the laggards. These longer-duration assets experienced duration-related price declines as two- and 30-year yields rose 38 basis points (bps) and 4 bps, respectively.

Index Definitions

The Sub-Fund is actively managed and uses the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Bond USD Hedged Index (the "Benchmark") for performance comparison purposes only. The Investment Manager is not bound by the components or weighting of the Benchmark when selecting investments

The Bloomberg Global Aggregate Index is a flagship measure of global investment grade debt from 28 local currency markets. This multicurrency benchmark includes treasury, government-related, corporate and securitized fixed-rate bonds from issuers in both developed and emerging markets.

You cannot invest directly in an index.

Market and exchange rate movement can cause the value of an investment to fall as well as rise, and you may get back less than originally invested. The information contained in this document (including the description of the investment objective and approach) is only a summary of the features of the Sub-Fund.

The Sub-Fund can invest a significant portion of the portfolio in high yield bonds and bonds which are not rated by a credit rating agency. While such bonds may offer a higher income, the interest paid on them and their capital value is at greater risk of not being repaid, particularly during periods of changing market conditions. The value of quarterly income payments will fluctuate.

The Sub-Fund manager can use derivatives for investment purposes using a swap to gain necessary exposure to both equities and fixed income. There is also risk that counterparties to derivatives may become insolvent, which may cause losses to the Sub-Fund. A portion of the Sub-Fund's expenses are charged to capital, which can reduce the potential for capital growth. In difficult markets conditions, reduced liquidity in bond markets may make it harder for the manager to sell assets at the quoted price. This could have a negative impact on the value of your investment. In extreme market conditions, certain assets may become hard to sell in a timely manner or at a fair price. This could affect the Sub-Fund's ability to meet investor's redemption requests upon demand.
